The Real Role of a Divorce Attorney

Addressing misconceptions about divorce lawyers, Dina stressed that divorce is not about revenge or retribution but rather a financial and family transition. "Clients need lawyers who are strong advocates but remain objective," she noted. "A good attorney speaks truth to power, guiding clients efficiently and ethically through the process."

Building the Right Divorce Team

Dina highlighted the importance of assembling a supportive team during divorce, including divorce coaches and financial professionals. She noted that each member of the team has a specific role, ensuring clients receive practical advice and emotional support without overwhelming their attorney, saving both money and stress.

Advice for Navigating Divorce Successfully

"Divorce is a tough process, second only to experiencing a death," Dina acknowledged. Her key advice? Focus on your future. "Everything you do and every decision you make during your divorce should be about building your next best life," she emphasized. Dina also advocates for reducing acrimony, especially when children are involved, to foster healthy co-parenting relationships post-divorce.

Personal Passions & Self-Care

Dina shared how self-care is crucial, both personally and professionally. She's an avid ballroom dancer—a hobby she took up during the pandemic—which she finds therapeutic and energizing. "I encourage my clients to find their passions during tough times," she added.
